Numb. XCII.

THE Pennſylvania GAZETTE.

Containing the freſheſt Advices Foreign and Domeſtick.

From Thurſday, Auguſt 13. to Thurſday, Auguſt 20. 1730.

PARIS, April 8.

SEVERAL odd Things have happen'd this Week in France, that in antient Gaul, or among the Roman People would have been thought ominous; but Men are not over-aw'd that Way in theſe Days, the Superſtition of our Times takes another Turn; whether the Humour proceeds from too little Religion or too much, I can't find out; but ſo it is, Firſt, The King by mere Force or arbitrary Rule, has by his Declaration, on Monday laſt, eſtabliſhed the Pope's Power in his own Kingdom, which his Great Grand Father had taken great Pains to root out. Seated upon his Bed of Juſtice, he cauſed the ſaid Declaration (for ſuch was his Pleaſure) to be regiſtred in Parliament, ordering the Bulls of the Sovereign Pontiffs, Innocent X. Alexander VII. and Clement XI. to be obſerved according to their Form and Tenor; in Conſequence whereof, no Perſon can be received into holy Orders, be promoted to any Benefice, or fill any See thro'out his Dominions, that does not ſwallow down, virtually and Phyſically, the Conſtitution, which condemns the five Propoſitions of Janſenius. At the ſame Time there is not a Janſeniſt but denies that there ever were any ſuch Propoſitions in any Book or Books of his Writing. The Declaration contains ſeveral Articles; one of which is levell'd againſt the Printers, for they are forbid to 'print, utter, vend or diſperſe any 'Works, Writings, Letters, or other Libels, 'that ſhall attack, directly or indirectly the ſaid 'Bulls, or ſhall tend to favour, in any Manner 'whatſoever, the ſaid condemned Propoſitions, 'or any Thing that ſhall be contrary to Reli-'gion, or the Reſpect due to the Pope, the 'Rights of the Gown, or the Liberties of the 'Gallican Church.' This points out Matter for ſome to work upon, who may think it their Duty to vindicate the contrary; and if what we hear be true, there is preparing a large Magazine of Scandal upon this Occaſion, which is to come abroad by Candle-light. And notwithſtanding the Parliament have regiſtred this Declaration of the King, the Majority of them have proteſted againſt it. How inconſiſtent muſt People act, when once they give up their Liberties? Here is the Authority of Parliament, for paſſing the King's Edict into a Law; and then again, here's their own Authority againſt that Authority; ſo that the People know not what they are to do, or what they are to believe.

Another odd Thing that has happened here is concerning a Law-ſuit between two Ladies, the Mother and the Daughter; and the Lawyer (only for Male-practice with his Client) is ſaddled with all the Coſts of Suit. This is a Precedent worth preſerving; and could it be brought into common Uſe, for the Gentlemen of the Faculty to pay for all the Miſchief they do, what an intolerable Burden would the Publick be eas'd of.

Monſieur de Vatan, Intendant of Caen, having been nominated to the Intendance of Chalons of greater Value, he has had the Grace to refuſe it, chooſing, perhaps, to ſtay and drink a Bottle with his old Neighbours; whereupon Monſieur le Pelletier de Beaupre has accepted of the Trouble, and all the Income of it.

The Court of the Chatelet is upon the Proceſs of a Soldier accuſed of Sodomy; and 'tis thought he will be condemned to be burnt alive.

May 17. On the 11th, on the Receipt of ſome Diſpatches from the Court of Vienna, there was a great Conference at Fontainbleau, at which the Lord Harrinton and other Miniſters of the Allies of Seville were preſent, at the breaking up of which thoſe Miniſters diſpatched Expreſſes to their Sovereigns, to acquaint them of it. The Prince of Tingry ſet out on the 15th of this Month to go to the Camp on the Sambre, and all the Regiments of Horſe are on their March for that Camp.

HAGUE, April 25. N. S. Letters from a good Hand at Vienna ſay, they think of nothing but a War there, let People reaſon as they will in other Countries. They have had many a Cabinet Council of late; but that which was held the 10th Inſtant, out did all the reſt in Point of Time, it having laſted from 8 in the Morning till 6 in the Evening.

FRANKFORT, May 19. We hear that moſt of the Imperial Troops that are in Garriſon at Fribourg and Old Briſac have received their laſt Orders to march for Italy; but they are to be re-placed by others that are coming from Hungary. Some Advices from Alſatia import that the Troops of France begin to put themſelves in Motion about Strasburgh, in order, as is believed, to form a Camp near Landau.

LONDON, June 11.

The Lord Bingley and Thomas Gibſon, Eſq; Truſtees for the Eſtate of the Duke of Wharton at Wooburn in Bedfordſhire, are about to deliver back the ſaid Eſtate to Col. Chartres, he having a Mortgage of 26,000 l. thereon; and the Colonel goes thither next Saturday for that Purpoſe. It had been ſeized on the Colonel's Attainder for Felony for the Duke of Wharton, as Lord of the Manor of Wooburn.

We hear that the Engliſh Forces deſign'd to aſſiſt in tranſporting Don Carlos to Italy, are to be embarked by the 15th of next Month, if the Emperor does not come in by that Time.

Extract of a Letter from the Hague, dated June 13. N. S.

IN mine of this Day ſen'night, I wrote you ſome Account of the Progreſs the deteſtable Sin of Sodomy had lately made in theſe Countries; and there were ſeven young Perſons under Proſecution for the ſame: I hinted at the ſame Time, that if any of them were found Guilty, they would meet with a Fate in ſome meaſure adequate to their Crime: Now this ſerves to acquaint you, that yeſterday 7 of thoſe Wretches were, after Conviction, publickly executed here, tho' if Money could have been of any Uſe to them, (I am ſorry to ſay it) none would perhaps have been wanting to commute the Puniſhment: But, to the immortal Honour of the Courts of Juſtice in theſe Provinces, there is no Reſpect of Perſons in ſuch Caſes. The 7 Perſons above-mentioned were firſt hanged, then 2 of them burnt, and the other 5 carry'd to Scheveling, and thrown into the Sea; their Aſhes not being thought worthy to mingle with thoſe of any that bear the Denomination of Chriſtians, or even of moral Men. But conſidering the Number of Perſons already in Priſon upon this Score, and the Diſcoveries that are daily made of their Accomplices, this Execution may be regarded only as the Prologue to the Tragedy that is likely to enſue, upon Mens calling ſo loud for Vengeance on their own Heads. However, there is Bailiff ——, and Seigneur ——, and Baron ——, and Mynheer ——, and Lieutenant ——, &c. &c. &c. and a great many more &c.'s gone off upon this atrocious Charge; and the Gentlemen whoſe Names are at preſent eclipſed by obſcure —s, have in vain been ſummoned before the Court of Holland by Sound of Bell, and Beat of Drum; of whom you may hear more hereafter.

It is written from Cadiz the 30th paſt, N. S. That their Commiſſaries were then examining the Merchants Ships in that Bay, in order to ſee how many of them were fit for the tranſport Service.

And from Algier the 20th of April, That the Britiſh Squadron under Admiral Cavendiſh had been there, and prevailed on the Dey to admit Mr. Black as Britiſh Conſul; that the Admiral had renewed the Peace, and ſettled all Things agreeable to his Maſter's Deſire; that the Time agreed on for renewing the Mediterranean Paſſes was 12 Months; and that on the Admiral's Departure the Dey made him a Preſent of a very fine Horſe. 'Tis added, that they expected Preſents this Summer from the Swedes, Dutch, &c. and that the Samuel, Capt. Atkinſon, ſailed the 1ſt of April from Tunis for Alexandria.

Twenty-two Perſons convicted of Sodomy have been publickly executed in Holland, and tis believed ſome Perſons who were miſſing and ſuſpected thereof, have been privately executed.

On Monday laſt the celebrated Mr. Orator Henley was admitted a Free and Accepted Maſon at the Prince William Lodge, Charing-Croſs, ſeveral Noblemen and Perſons of Diſtinction being preſent at the Ceremony.

What a Satisfaction muſt it be to every good Engliſhman to obſerve the different Manner of treating Parliaments in England and a neighbouring Kingdom? Where we ſee an arbitrary, incens'd Monarch browbeating and menacing the Members to a ſervile Compliance with his Royal Commands. It ſeems his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty's Parliament having oppoſed regiſtring the Conſtitution Unigenitus, though they were fully acquainted with his Royal Pleaſure therein, when he held his late Bed of Juſtice (See our Gazette No. 87.) it gave great Offence to his Majeſty, which was the Occaſion of the Audience had by the Deputies of that Parliament, of which we have an Account in the following Article,

Fontainbleau, May 11. N. S. 'The great 'Maſter of the Ceremonies, and one of the 'Secretaries of State were ſent to the Deputies, who were ſtanding in the Council Chamber, to let them know, that the King expected them in his Cabinet. As ſoon as they 'were introduced by thoſe two Gentlemen, 'ſaid his Majeſty to them, I ſent for you, to 'ſhew you, how very much I am diſpleaſed with 'every Thing you have been doing among your 'ſelves. My Chancellor will give you a farther 'Account of the Occaſion and my Intentions. Thereupon the Chancellor ſpoke to this Effect. 'That the King out of an Exceſs of Goodneſs, 'was pleaſed to ſhut his Eyes againſt the Indecency that was ſhewn at his laſt Bed of Juſtice, contrary to the Reſpect which his Preſence commanded; that his good Nature had been abuſed, even to ſuch a Degree, that they had ſtirred up Matter amongſt them, inconſiſtent with the Dignity and Duty of the

Court

'Court of Parliament; and that they could 'not ſufficiently efface the Remembrance of ſo 'dangerous a Precedent; that it was his Ma'jeſty's Pleaſure, that all that had been done 'in that Affair, in the Chambers des Enquetes 'and Requetes, ſince the third of laſt Month, 'and all that followed upon the ſame, ſhall re'main ſuppreſſed, as if it had never been done, 'and of no Force, and as contrary to the Obe'dience due to the King's Will; that it was his 'Majeſty's Command, that the Chambers ſhould 'meet, to hear from the firſt Preſident the 'Subſtance of what was now ſaid, without en'tring into any Debate thereupon, or appoint'ing any Aſſembly: That the King had hi'therto behaved towards them with the In'dulgence of a Father; and that it lay upon 'the Members of the Parliament to deſerve, 'by their Submiſſion and Obedience, that he 'ſhould never be obliged to treat them with 'the juſt Rigour of a King.

Thereupon the firſt Preſident, turning towards the King, anſwered in the Name of the Members, 'That they humbly intreated his 'Majeſty to reſtore his Protection to Judges, 'whoſe Intention were pure, and of whom 'his Majeſty had judged, that they had car'ried their Exceſs of Zeal too far; but that 'they had not the leaſt Thought of falling 'ſhort of the Fidelity they ow'd to his Service; 'and that they ardently wiſh'd, they might be 'permitted to bring the Aſſurances thereof to 'the Foot of his Throne.' Then the King 'reply'd thus: I forbid all Debates about what 'is ſaid here of my Will and Pleaſure. Towhich the firſt Preſident made Anſwer, 'That the 'Members would execute with Reluctance, but 'with Submiſſion, the Orders which his Maje'ſty had been pleaſed to give them.

Extract of a Letter from Paris.

FREQUENT Expreſſes arrive from Spain, the Conſequences of which are, that other Expreſſes are ſent to England, but we are told that Marquis Spinola appears now pretty well pleaſed with the good Effects of the Peace in a certain Country, for he has received very good Aſſurances that they are now in earneſt preparing for War. His Catholick Majeſty has not taken up his Reſidence in the City of Granada, but in a Foreſt near it, where he leads a very retired Life, ſeeing but little Company; it is uncertain when he will go to Madrid, becauſe the Queen will uſe all her Artifices to divert him from it, from an Apprehenſion that he deſigns to retire to St. Ildefonſo, and again reſign his Crown to the Prince of Aſturias, and then there's an End of her Power; conſider what a Mortification this muſt be to a Perſon who is of a Sex which is ſometimes buſy and meddling in Things out of their Sphere. As to the King (notwithſtanding the great Buſtle that is made in Europe, about the Italian Dutchies) it is plain that his Mind is more fix'd upon a Crown in Heaven than on one in this World.

The King lives in ſuch a Manner at preſent, near Grenada, as if he had a Mind to lay aſide all the Trappings, and Incumbrances of Royalty, and taſte for a while the Tranquility and Sweets of a rural Life. The Palace where he now reſides is no other than a Keeper's Lodge in a Foreſt, within two Leagues of the City of Granada, which Foreſt belongs to his Majeſty, nor is there any Village near it, the Place is called Soto di Roma; adjoining to the Lodge there is a Barn, a Milk-houſe, and 2 or 3 other ordinary Buildings, which upon ſome Occaſions might ſerve for the Reception of Horſes or Aſſes, but at preſent the Officers of the King's Houſhold, and ſuch Attendants as are abſolutely neceſſary about him, take up with them, or we may ſay, Pig in there. The Marquis de la Paz, Secretary of State, keeps his Office in a Peaſant's Houſe, 3 Quarters of a League from the ſaid Palace, in the Apartment where the Peaſant lies; and the Under-Secretary and Clerks have ſome Benches and Boards nailed up in an adjoining Cow-houſe, (or Aſs-houſe, for I won't determine which) for the Diſpatch of Buſineſs. This may appear a little Romantick, but the Thing is really true, for the King ſees no Company.
